Headmaster Craig Maughan joins the rest of the Trinity family in welcoming Byron M. Lawson Jr. as our fifth head of school. Headmaster Maughan retired at the end of the 2015-16 year after leading the school for 23 years. Mr. Lawson joins us after serving at The St. Mark's School in Dallas since 2001.

IT IS THE SAME CONNECTION THAT WILL PROPEL
TRINITY PREP
DURING ITS NEXT
50 YEARS WITH NEW LEADERSHIP.

Time and time again I hear that the Trinity family is the heart of our school and the lifelong connection our students take with them into the world. This connection endures the test of time as students graduate, embark on their careers, and perhaps start families of their own. It is the same connection that will propel Trinity Prep during its next 50 years with new leadership.

The 2015-16 school year marks the end of an era as Craig Maughan retires as headmaster of Trinity Prep. Hundreds turned out in April at the celebration event to say thank you to Craig and Jody for their 23 years of service to the school. You can read more about the event on page 8. There has been plenty of reflection on how the school has transformed under Craig's leadership. Liz Lowndes McIntosh '78 shares some of her memories of Craig with her unique perspective as an alumna, alumni parent, former member of the board of trustee, and former employee on page 5.

As the 2016-17 school year begins, Trinity Prep now looks ahead to a new beginning with a new leader. The enthusiasm for Byron M. Lawson Jr.'s appointment has been exciting to see. We were fortunate to have Harlan and Kathy Crow open their Dallas home and allow us to hold a welcome event for Byron in the Harlan Crow Library in June. Alumni in the Texas area came together for this special evening and a wonderful time was had by all. Make sure to check out the pictures on page 55.

We hope you share our excitement about this fresh new "look" of the Trinity Prep alumni magazine showcasing the Trinity family and our remarkable school. We want to hear from you! Email trammellk@trinityprep.org to let us know what you think of the new TrinityPrep alumni magazine. ✨

THE TRINITY FAMILY IS GRATEFUL TO CRAIG AND JODY MAUGHAN FOR THEIR COMMITMENT

For nearly half of Trinity Prep's existence,

Craig Maughan has been at the helm. We might stop there, thinking that is the story: "Headmaster Maughan leads Trinity Prep for almost a quarter century." Without digging deeper, we would assume that Craig brought commitment, constancy, and vision to those years during which Trinity Prep has thrived. And that is a good story, a true story—but it is just part of the story.

In fact, the story of Craig Maughan at the helm is composed of many stories. Those stories include building a fine faculty and administration by attracting and keeping excellent teachers and mentors; building outstanding student bodies of learners who grew, stretched, aimed for and achieved goals academically, athletically, and in service to community; and building--well, buildings! Trinity Prep's campus transformed into a first-class place of learning, with its successive strategic plans satisfying the growing physical needs of the school under Craig's management.

But my favorite stories, the most important stories, about Craig's time at the helm are the stories of students. Craig fostered a community in keeping with Trinity Prep's identity as a family. He knew the importance of each student's story, and he understood how those stories combine to create the larger narrative. You might even call Craig the editor of that narrative as he listened, considered, guided, and administered. The weaving together of years of student stories to achieve Trinity Prep's progress as a leading educational institution is no mean feat. But he understood that student stories fuel that progress.

In my years as a student, an alumna, a Trustee, a parent, and an administrator, I learned—and believe in—the importance of the Trinity family. As head of this family for 23 years, Craig displayed, with unwavering, thoughtful dedication, those qualities one associates with the best leaders. Craig maintained a culture that is at once personal and professional, reflective and forward-thinking, inclusive and focused. And because the success of the student is at the center of all of these stories, Trinity Prep succeeds.

The story of Trinity Prep and its students, teachers, administrators, parents, and alumni is rich and important—with depth, aspiration, humor, and compassion. While Trinity Prep's story has many exciting chapters to come, the Trinity family is grateful to Craig and Jody Maughan for their commitment, constancy, and vision. As my favorite stories have happy endings, we wish Craig and Jody all the best in their next chapters. And we hope they live happily ever after! ✨

WERE ABLE TO AWARD SEVEN
$2,500 GRANTS
THAT ENABLED
STUDENTS
TO ATTEND
TRINITY PREP.

This has been a momentous year for Trinity Prep.

We have seen the construction of a new middle school building; said goodbye to Craig Maughan, our headmaster for the past 23 years; and welcomed our new head of school, Byron Lawson Jr. The changes in facilities and leadership will have a large impact on Trinity Prep's future, and I'm hoping that the Alumni Advisory Board's focus on gifts to financial aid will also have a positive impact on the future of our school. This year we were able to award seven $2,500 grants that enabled students to attend Trinity Prep. We hope to increase the amount of awards next year and explore starting a scholarship endowment. I thank the alumni that made gifts during 2015-16 for their support.

Craig Maughan and his family came to Trinity Prep the same year I did. Our families bonded because my sister and I were in the same class years as his children ('99 and '01), and we celebrated many holidays together. Craig's retirement marks the end of an era at Trinity Prep that saw tremendous growth in both the school's facilities and student body. While his presence will be missed, we are excited for the arrival of our fifth head of school, Byron Lawson Jr. I had the pleasure of attending the event in Dallas welcoming Mr. Lawson to Trinity Prep. The setting of an event at the Harlan Crow Library was incredible, and Byron Lawson Jr. was equally impressive. His vision for what Trinity Prep can become left all of us excited for the future. He will be attending most, if not all, of the local and regional alumni events throughout the 2016-17 school year so I hope you will all come to meet and welcome him to the Trinity family. ✨

THANK YOU
TO THE TRINITY FAMILY FOR 23 WONDERFUL YEARS!

I want to express my gratitude to those who have been so important to me in my time at Trinity Prep. I have deeply appreciated the kind comments about my time here; however, those same sentiments should also be directed to the Board of Trustees, administration, and the faculty and staff who have played such important roles at the school. Leadership is not an individual phenomenon. Effective leadership is both collaborative and responsive. I have depended upon the wise counsel and engagement of the administrative council and the broad support and strategic initiatives of the Board of Trustees. Furthermore, I have been so fortunate to be ably assisted by four wonderful professional assistants, Sandy Voyles, Donna Curran, Shaun Hicks, and Diane Rosenbaum. Without their organizational skills, professionalism, discretion, and responsiveness, much of what has been accomplished would not have been possible. I am also grateful to the Trinity family who has trusted us with their children and has been generous in their support. Last, I am deeply grateful to my family: my son Chris and daughter Whitney, both graduates of Trinity Prep, and particularly to my wife, Jody, who has been a wonderful partner providing advice, counsel, and continuous support. Jody and I will be celebrating our 40th wedding anniversary this summer.

Best wishes to Byron M. Lawson Jr. as he begins his service to the school. Thank you to the Trinity family for 23 wonderful years! ✨

MAUGHAN ADMINISTRATION CENTER

The MAC

On Saturday, April 30, hundreds of members of the Trinity family gathered in the auditorium for a special program to honor Headmaster Craig Maughan. After remarks by Chris Maughan '99, Craig's son, and John Race, former chair of the Board of Trustees, the current chairman of the board, Paul Perkins '84, read a proclamation to dedicate the Maughan Administration Center (or, familiarly, The MAC), its new name emblazoned in large letters over the entrance to the reception area. The construction of the building was Maughan's first major capital project soon after he began working at the school in 1993. As the first building that people see when they visit campus, it showcases Trinity Prep's commitment to educational excellence, housing art and pottery studios, publications labs, music and theater performance and rehearsal areas, classrooms, an 800-seat auditorium, and most of the school's administrative offices.

Art teacher Irina Ashcraft presented Maughan with a framed canvas produced by eight of her Painting II students, each of whom chose a special place on campus to portray, including the rock, the bell tower, and the sandhill cranes. Then the various segments were combined into a heart-shaped collage, symbolizing their love for the school and for its headmaster. Paula Phillips, science department chair and teacher in the Malone Schools Network, read a letter from the executive director of the Malone Foundation, Cathie Wlaschin, who was unable to attend the celebration. She praised Maughan for his involvement in the program and his dedication to its excellence, saying, "Together we've changed the lives of 27 scholars at TPS, and these future leaders will one day add to your legacy."

To conclude the program, music teacher Brian Beute introduced a symphonic chorale for orchestra and chorus, composed in Maughan's honor by his friend and former Trinity Prep music teacher, Michael Miller. Inspired by and entitled "Ad Astra Per Aspera" after the Trinity motto and Alma Mater, and performed by student musicians from the instrumental and choral classes, the musical offering had been rehearsed in secret for weeks and was a complete surprise, not just to Maughan but to the entire audience of students, faculty, and families. It received a standing ovation and will be repeated in future years as one of our Trinity traditions.

Lunch on the Lawn was served after the program, and all the attendees joined Maughan and his family for one last celebration to thank him for his 23 years of leadership at the helm of Trinity Prep. ✨

Leading The Way

A Q&A with retiring headmaster Craig S. Maughan and incoming head of school Byron M. Lawson Jr.

CRAIG S. MAUGHAN

WHAT HAS BEEN YOUR GUIDING EDUCATIONAL PHILOSOPHY?

I have always felt strongly that we should provide high expectations for students and be prepared to care for and assist them in the struggle to meet those expectations. As a school we should approach students as individuals, be aware of what is developmentally appropriate, and then provide specific advice and counsel to help students achieve their goals.

WHAT WERE YOUR INITIAL GOALS WHEN JOINING TRINITY PREP IN 1993?

- Familiarize myself with all the students, faculty, traditions, and programs of Trinity Prep
- Implement a strategic plan
- Review the curriculum and develop a process to revise it where appropriate
- Articulate an educational vision of excellence for all curricular and extracurricular programs

HOW DID YOU ACHIEVE THESE GOALS?

Thanks to strong leadership from the board of trustees and administrators and teachers, an open consideration of who we aspired to be, and careful campus planning, we were able to improve our school and raise the profile of Trinity Prep across the country.

HOW HAVE THE STUDENTS CHANGED OVER THE YEARS?

Through the years the students have not changed but their environment has. More students are involved with technology, social media, and electronics than they were when I came in 1993.

WHAT ARE YOU MOST PROUD OF ACCOMPLISHING DURING YOUR TENURE?

Expanding our community service efforts both on campus and in the broader community. Our students and teachers are actively involved throughout Central Florida helping communities in need. Our 17-year partnership with Habitat for Humanity is especially significant and I'm proud of the ongoing work our school does with such an important organization.

WHAT DO YOU LOOK FORWARD TO MOST ABOUT TRINITY PREP'S FUTURE?

Celebrating our 50th anniversary in 2018 and reuniting with as many retired faculty, current faculty, alumni, families, students, and friends from the Trinity family who have all played such an important role in establishing Trinity Prep as a premier college preparatory school in this region.

BYRON M. LAWSON JR.*WHAT EXCITES YOU MOST ABOUT JOINING TRINITY PREP?

Talented students, masterful faculty, aspirational board members, and supportive alumni, parents, and friends make Trinity Prep a very inviting place. Year-round sunshine is pretty nice too.

WHAT IS YOUR EDUCATIONAL PHILOSOPHY?

My educational philosophy is based on three main points:

1. Learning informs teaching, and no one has really learned anything until they have provided a demonstration of their mastery.
2. Threshold concepts advance deep learning; I try to use them whenever I can.
3. Great editing is the only path to great writing.

HOW HAVE YOU BEEN PREPARING FOR YOUR NEW ROLE?

I have prepared by participating in the hiring process for three new employees for the 2016-17 school year, speaking regularly with Headmaster Maughan, attending an alumni event, visiting the website, and watching video of key events and programs. Of course, I have also been reading and listening to the advice of mentors as I prepare to join Trinity Prep.

HOW WILL WE HAVE A CHANCE TO GET TO KNOW YOU?

Alumni can attend regional events or visit one of the events from the Trinity Prep Experience series, including a reception in New York City celebrating our alumni performing on Broadway. I look forward to meeting many members of the Trinity family at school events throughout the year. I have given myself the homework assignment of taking one photo per day, and will be sharing some of these with the community.

WHERE DO YOU SEE OPPORTUNITIES FOR TRINITY PREP MOVING FORWARD?

We will go from good to great wherever possible in our teaching; where our instructional and administrative strengths are clear, we must embrace the responsibility of leadership by serving learners everywhere. As our outreach grows over time, we must be open to praise and critique, in whatever form they come. We are embarking on a holistic and inclusive strategic planning process and the campus master plan will be redrawn over the next 18 months with many possibilities for how to best shape our campus for the next fifty years. ✨

A Far-Reaching Trinity Family

BY SAMANTHA DIMAIO '18

Angela Yarnish Driver '05 and Lauren Yarnish '08

The Trinity family branches out in many different, far-reaching ways. Trinity Prep connects us together, and the contacts we make here last for a lifetime. As you know, John Michael Night '16, was hospitalized in December 2015 after a stroke. He spent several months recovering at the Shepherd Center in Atlanta. We were pleased to learn that one of our alumni, Angela Yarnish Driver '05, works at the Shepherd Center, and we reached out to her to share her experience.

The Shepherd Center

Angela graduated from Trinity Prep in 2005. She said, "My Trinity Prep experience was an amazing one. I entered Trinity Prep in the ninth grade from another local private school, and I thought it might be difficult to make friends, given the fact that a lot of people had been at Trinity Prep since sixth grade, but that wasn't the case at all!"

Angela enjoyed all aspects of Trinity Prep life--yes, even the difficult academics because they prepared her so well for college. She went to University of Alabama for both her bachelor's and master's degrees with a focus on communication studies. Currently, she is a marketing communications specialist at the Shepherd Center, a top-10 rehabilitation hospital. Her job is primarily marketing related. She works closely with the Shepherd Center's field reps (physician liaisons) to ensure their marketing efforts are geared towards the appropriate referring hospitals.

Angela develops marketing collateral and programs to reach out to new and existing referring trauma hospitals. She also attends healthcare or trauma conferences across the nation. Many Trinity Prep teachers had an impact on her career choice, but the one person that resonated with Angela the most was Dr. Stephanie Dryden. "Dr. Dryden was an incredibly hard English teacher (at least for me), but she is the reason I was able to take honors English classes throughout undergrad. She is also the reason why I minored in English. I hope she enjoys student and college counseling as much as she enjoyed teaching!" Angela said.

In discussing the reach of the Trinity family, Angela said, "The Trinity family never ceases to amaze me. I've run into so many people from Trinity Prep in places I thought I never would, especially since I don't live in Florida anymore." When Angela heard about John Michael Night's story and the amazing community support surrounding him and his family, she reached out to several people at Shepherd Center to ensure his transition was as smooth as possible.

Angela didn't work directly with John Michael in a daily capacity because she is not clinical, but she was able to meet his family upon admission and let them know that the Trinity family exists even at the Shepherd Center. "Hopefully this was as comforting as the excellent clinical and rehabilitative care he is receiving here. I do a lot of patient tours at Shepherd, and I often saw John Michael during his therapy--he always had a smile on his face."

Before meeting John Michael at the Shepherd Center, Angela never realized how far and wide the Trinity family extends. Angela recently had the opportunity to reconnect with an old Trinity Prep friend, Jenna Rhine '06, who she just found out lives in Atlanta. They actually ran into each other at Shepherd Center (Jenna works for Coca-Cola and they happen to be one of their clients). "It feels great knowing that even though I no longer live near Trinity Prep, the sense of community of current Trinity Prep students and alumni is always there. It feels like I never left, in a way." 🌸

Angela Yarnish Driver '05 and Kevin Driver

A Miracle and a Blessing

As reported in the Winter 2016 edition of the TrinityPrep alumni magazine, John Michael Night '16 suffered a brainstem stroke on Dec. 14, 2015 which left him in a medical state referred to as Locked-In-Syndrome. Vickie Night, John Michael's mother, shares an update on John Michael and the Night family.

On Jan. 5, John Michael was transferred to the Shepherd Center in Atlanta, which provides intensive rehabilitation for patients with spinal-cord injuries, brain trauma, and neuromuscular disorders. John Michael's days were spent doing intensive therapy. While he grew tired of his situation and lack of control over his life, the therapist continued to push him and loved his "one more time" and "no I'm not too tired" attitude. They did a third and final swallow study on John Michael before leaving the Shepherd Center, and we are beyond thrilled that he passed! While he will still have his feeding tube for some time, he can now start to slowly eat soft or pureed foods.

Doctors didn't know how long he would be at the Shepherd Center, but after spending five months there his return to Winter Park was scheduled for May 24. Could we have asked for a more perfect date? As if the emotions of returning home weren't enough, we drove down Park Avenue and were immediately greeted with purple ribbons, balloons, and signs along with friends, family, and strangers, all cheering for John Michael. It ended in front of our church with everyone chanting "JM Strong." I cry even as I write about it.

The transition home is going as best as can be expected. Leaving the Shepherd Center and all of our family for the past five months was not easy. They are amazing people who loved and cared for John Michael and we will forever be grateful. Being home has definitely been good. Nothing compares to the comforts of home. Having all of John Michael's friends over and hearing all of their laughter is priceless!

As predicted, Saturday, June 4 was the most amazing event I have ever witnessed: John Michael's graduation from Trinity Prep, a true miracle and blessing wrapped into one. So many answered prayers. The courage it took to take those steps is beyond comprehension. Mick and I have never been more proud. The look on his face was one of laughter and tears – sighs of joy and heartache. Indeed, he is my hero! So graduation is over. He accomplished his first long term goal. Time to set a new one.

God has a larger plan for John Michael. I am overwhelmed by how many he has touched. I am convinced that he could have never reached so many on his own. John Michael's story isn't just about him, it's about all of you and the many more lives he will touch.

Thank you to a community that has embraced my family like I've never seen before. Thank you to Trinity Prep for allowing John Michael to graduate and thank you to the Trinity family for all of your love and support. ✨

Q&A With Retiring Staff

BY SAMANTHA DIMAIO '18

Some of the retiring staff members share their take on the Trinity Prep experience. Through the good, the bad, and the ugly, we found out what kept some of our beloved faculty here all these years. For the Harry Potter fans: “Did you love Trinity Prep, after all this time?” “Always.”

Q: HOW MANY YEARS HAVE YOU WORKED AT TRINITY PREP?

A: HERVE LE GUILLOUX (HLG): I taught here for 22 years. I began in August of 1994.

SHERRY HAY (SH): I worked at Trinity Prep for 22 years.

LAURAL SCHMIDT (LS): I’ve been on staff for 10 years. Before that, I was a parent volunteer for five years and served as co-editor of our fine arts magazine, “Folio.”

DIANE ROSENBAUM (DR): I worked here for 11 years.

Q: WHAT HAS YOUR POSITION(S) BEEN DURING THIS TIME?

A: HLG: I always taught French from the seventh grade up to the AP class.

SH: I began in admission as the administrative assistant as part of a two-person office. I was promoted to assistant director and took over as director in 2002.

LS: I’ve been the attendance coordinator most of the time, but for the last two years I have been the scheduler. I also support the chaplain and our two guidance counselors.

DR: I began as the administrative assistant for the middle school and four years ago became the assistant to the headmaster.

Q: HOW HAS THE SCHOOL CHANGED OVER THE YEARS?

A: HLG: The school has changed tremendously over the years. Back in 1994, the cafeteria was a simple area covered with a roof but exposed to the vagaries of the weather. While the new Grille was being built, we had our lunch under a tent, which was fine until the torrential rain would come and visit the campus. Then the muddy soil made the lunch a memorable, but not so pleasant, experience. Remember that it does not rain “cats and dogs” in Florida, but rather that it rains “gators and manatees.”

LS: Well, for one thing, the facilities have grown and expanded over the years. I moved into my office shortly after our beautiful library and the Student Resource Center was built. I have seen improvements made to our fine arts facilities, including the addition of our fantastic pottery studio, and I have watched us build the Trinity Grille and middle school building.

SHERRY HAY

HERVE LE GUILLOUX

DIANE ROSENBAUM

LAURAL SCHMIDT

Q: HOW HAVE THE STUDENTS CHANGED OVER THE YEARS?

A: HLG: More than ever, students are concerned about excelling in their courses. It seems to me that, as a teacher, I have observed a beautiful evolution toward more diligence in their work. They are also eager to learn and apply themselves in their daily work in a laudable manner.

SH: I can’t say that the students have changed over the past 22 years. The typical Trinity Prep student is still one who is motivated, goal-oriented, engaged in the community, and involved in many school activities. They are high achievers and hard workers. They are respectful, welcoming, and creative. What has changed for the students is the opportunities they now have compared to 22 years ago.

LS: I think that students are working harder and taking more challenging course loads year after year. I’ve seen a growth in school spirit and in the way students come together to support a cause that is meaningful to them. I think they are embracing leadership in ever-increasing ways. And the visual arts pieces coming from our fine arts students have gotten more and more incredible.

DR: I think the students are more independent. Cell phones were very new even 15 years ago, and most students did not have them. Students did not know how to type when they first started here, and in sixth grade, they had a quarter-long typing class. They seem more “grown up” today than 15-20 years ago.

Q: CAN YOU SUMMARIZE YOUR TIME AT TRINITY PREP IN TERMS OF WHY YOU LOVE OUR SCHOOL AND WHAT HAS KEPT YOU HERE?

A: HLG: Yes, I love the school. It is certainly due to the quality of education across the board. A relationship with Trinity Prep parents is another positive component. I feel, of course, that this is due to the fact that parents are very involved in the academic life of their children and that they are consequently eager to communicate with individual teachers. Rapport with parents has been thus essential, and I have always cherished knowing the parents of my students.

SH: I love Trinity Prep for three reasons, my colleagues, the Trinity families, and the students. The Trinity family is a real and tangible thing. This community is supportive, caring, and encouraging through good times and hard times. I have seen hundreds of students graduate each year and am always impressed by their achievements, but, more importantly, I am proud of their thoughtfulness and appreciation for their teachers, parents, coaches, friends, and others who have supported them.

LS: I have enjoyed watching our students grow and mature and then step out into the world, ready for the challenge of college; I have enjoyed working with our impressive faculty, so many of whom I greatly admire; and probably most of all I have enjoyed the friendship and camaraderie of those staff members with whom I work so closely.

Q: WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE ACTIVITY THAT TPS HOSTS?

A: HLG: Headmaster’s Day. It is a wonderful day filled with a multitude of events that include both students and faculty. I also love the alumni events since I get to see how my former students have blossomed in life.

SH: Lunch on the Lawn during homecoming week. I love seeing the whole community come together on the quad, and it makes me smile to see the seniors with their little sixth grade brothers and sisters.

LS: I absolutely love “Jazz Band Morning” when the jazz band sets up and ushers us into school with swing music, my favorite. I wish every day could start with “Jazz Band Morning”! But probably my favorite day of all is the last day for our seniors, when they swarm the quad, drive up a car, and blast their music--“school’s out for summer; school’s out forever.” That day really chokes me up; it is so happy yet bittersweet. I can actually feel their joy as they embrace their “freedom.” It makes me cry every year.

DR: My favorite TPS activity is graduation. I still cry when the music begins at 9 a.m.

Q: DO YOU HAVE ANY ADVICE TO THE TPS STUDENTS AND TEACHERS?

A: SH: Never forget how blessed you are to be in the Trinity family. Being a part of this community is a wonderful experience not replicated in many places.

LS: Really embrace their time here and get involved in as many activities as possible.

DR: Life goes by very quickly. Live in the moment, live without regrets, and appreciate all that you are and all that you have.

Q: ANY FINAL THOUGHTS ON YOUR RETIREMENT?

A: HLG: I will fondly remember my students to whom my career of teaching has been dedicated for over 40 years. In fact, my motto has always been: “Enseigner, quel plaisir!” (Teaching, what a pleasure!). I will always be happy to hear from them and see how they are doing in life. Maybe I can give them help on where to go and what to visit in France. Also, I had the honor and privilege of officiating at a wedding of two former students, and I want alums to know that I would be happy to do the same for them.

SH: I have loved my journey and have so many wonderful memories and relationships that will be a part of me for as long as I live. I am looking forward to spending time with my four grandchildren and my family. I am looking forward to traveling and I am hopeful that I can find a way to give back through community service.

DR: I’m looking forward to the next phase of my life, which will include traveling, grandchildren visits, time with my family, and exercising every morning! ✨

Extended Family Matters

On March 17, Trinity Prep's annual Grandparents' Day was successful in spreading joy and celebrating the importance of family.

Students of all grades were invited to bring their grandparents to campus for breakfast and assembly and to attend their third and fourth periods on a typical day. Parent and student volunteers alike chipped in to welcome the visitors and show them around the campus.

The day kicked off with 396 grandparents arriving at 8:15 a.m. They were greeted by their grandchild(ren) and then invited to enjoy a continental breakfast and have their pictures taken with the grandchildren in the photo booths before starting the morning activities. Grandparents and grandchildren then entered the auditorium and were introduced to Trinity Prep's beloved leader and grandparent himself, Headmaster Craig Maughan.

To conclude the day's festivities, the jazz band performed, and the grandchildren led their grandparents to their third and fourth period classes. Special projects and games, such as geography quizzes in French class and Gelli prints in art, were set up in class for students and grandparents to enjoy together. Students without classes during third or fourth periods took their grandparents to a forensics presentation in the school's library and competed in several games of bingo.

"I love seeing my students with their grandparents doing fun (and sometimes messy) activities," said Kym Moreland-Garnett, art teacher. "I also enjoy hearing grandparents bragging about their grandkids! Overall, it's just a great event and something I really love about the Trinity family."

We can't wait to see our grandparents again next year on Friday, March 10! ✨

Summer Reading Recommendations

For many, summer is a time for vacations, lazy afternoons, and relaxing-- and what better way to relax than to dig into a captivating read? We have brought you a list of stellar summer reading recommendations, courtesy of our faculty. Happy reading!

MR. BLUTH - ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

I always read a lot over the summer. Here are some of the books that I hope to get to: "Leading with the Heart" by Mike Krzyzewski. In my opinion, this is the best book written on leadership. I have read this book many times the season before coaching and, as the new girls varsity basketball coach, I look forward to reading it again. "Samurai!" by Saburo Sakai. This was given to me by a friend years ago, and it has sat on my nightstand long enough! Saburo Sakai is known as Japan's greatest living fighter pilot from WWII. If James Patterson (love Alex Cross) or Brad Meltzer (friend) has something out, I will be very happy!

MR. LAWSON - NEW HEAD OF SCHOOL

1- John McPhee's, "The Headmaster" - this is a seminal text. Everyone that has held this role has read the book. Additionally, in the independent school world, the text has been well-received as a biography. 2-Dr. Seuss, "The Cat in the Hat" - Everyone needs a little Dr. Seuss in their lives. Thing One and Thing Two are two of my favorite literary characters. My youngest son turns four this summer. 3- Marcel Proust, "The Complete Short Stories" - I love to read Proust. I can see his pictures. I can smell his aromas. I can taste his food. His writing seems real to me.

MS. LILLEY - AP LIT

I have a whole list, and I will be lucky if I get to half of them! A few good ones on my list: "Eligible" by Curtis Sittenfeld--a modern retelling of "Pride and Prejudice"! That story never gets old. Also Anita Desai's "Clear Light of Day." I borrowed it a year ago from Mr. Mulloy, so I guess I'd better read and return it! It looks great. My big bad satirical read this summer will be Paul Beatty's "The Sellout." A few of my seniors read it this spring for a project and gave it rave reviews, but they said it's not for the faint of heart.

MR. MILSTEN - AP WORLD HISTORY, HONORS HISTORY 9

"The Last Temptation of Christ" by Nikos Kazantzakis still awaits a better translation, but it's important because it actually contemplates Christ incarnate and his battle to remain sinless. On the cross Christ receives the last dangerous, irresistible temptation: domestic life. I also hope to read "The Little Drummer Girl" by John le Carre - an English actress is tricked into moving to a Greek Island only to be injected into the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Which side will she choose and does it even matter?

MADAME SPALLONE - FRENCH

I just purchased "Americanah," a novel by Nigerian author Chimamanda Ngozi Adiche, which I am planning to read this summer. It was recommended to me by my Honors French IV student Julia Paoli '16 as we were discussing the questions of race, identity, and assimilation in class. It tells the story of a young Nigerian woman who emigrates to the United States for a university education and stays for work. It talks about immigration, American dreams, racism, and love, and it received incredible reviews!

The Perkins Family

In the Summer of 2015, Trinity Prep Magazine introduced a new legacy family feature. A legacy family is one in which a parent is an alumnus of Trinity Prep and his or her child has attended or is currently attending Trinity Prep. In this legacy family feature, we share with you the story of the Perkins Family.

Paul Perkins '84 began his Trinity Prep experience in sixth grade in 1977. During his time at Trinity Prep, his interests included sports, art, writing, and joking around with friends. "In middle school I was pretty much a class clown. I played sports and hung out with Joe Lowndes and Steve Drosdick, and we just cut up all the time. In fact, my parents almost took me out of Trinity Prep in eighth grade because my grades had dropped, and my teachers were complaining about me." His friends left Trinity Prep; Steve became a professional tennis player in Europe, and Joe is a tenured professor in Oregon. However, with the threat of having to leave Trinity Prep looming over him, Paul buckled down and turned his grades around.

In sixth grade, Paul joined the soccer team and continued on the team until 11th grade, when he switched to basketball because he discovered cheerleaders. "I was still a cut up, but I learned how to do it in a way that got me positive results rather than detention." His senior year, Paul was inspired by his English teacher, Ronald Vierling. "He taught me how to write and convinced me that I had talent. But at Trinity Prep, I feel like I learned as much from my peers as I did from my teachers and coaches." He then went on to win both the art and the writing award that year. Paul has many fond memories of Trinity Prep: "I didn't have a single day at Trinity Prep that didn't include a full-on, side-clutching belly laugh, at least twice a day."

According to Paul, however, the best part about Trinity Prep is what happens after you leave. Paul continued his education at Morehouse College in Atlanta, graduating in 1988 with a bachelor's degree in political science. After graduating from the University of Florida College of Law in 1991, he began clerking for Judge Kendall Sharp in the U.S. Federal District Court in the Middle District of Florida. During his time in law school, Paul met Andrea Diana Hall, and they were married on Dec. 28, 1991. Paul then went on to study at Sydney University in Sydney, Australia in 1992, and upon returning to the United States, began practicing law in Central Florida. Seven years ago, Paul opened his own law office in Central Florida and currently practices personal injury law.

Presently, Paul serves on both the Alumni Advisory Board and the Board of Trustees. “My service on the board has been one of the most gratifying things I’ve done in my adult life outside of my family. In fact, I consider Trinity Prep my extended family. I have never regretted a single penny or nano-second I have spent in Trinity Prep’s service.” Paul has served on the Board of Trustees for the past 14 years, and is currently the chair. “I have only been a weak participant in the Alumni Advisory Board, but that’s about to change now that I have rotated off the trustee board and have more time. I intend to serve the Alumni Board with the same enthusiasm I gave to the trustees.

“I always knew I would send my kids to Trinity Prep, even when I was still at the school.” Paul’s daughter, Gillian, graduated from Trinity Prep in 2014, and his son, George, is a current student in the class of 2018. He was determined to send his children to Trinity Prep “when I saw how prepared I was for college and law school after leaving Trinity Prep. I was even more determined when I came back to Central Florida, and I saw how many doors were opened and opportunities afforded to me due to my being a Trinity Prep graduate.”

A large part of what has made Trinity Prep such an amazing school is its long line of dedicated headmasters. As Craig Maughan finishes his last year at Trinity Prep, Paul reflects on the impact he has made. “Craig Maughan’s chapter in the Trinity Prep story is as important as Canon Hay’s, and he was the founder of the school! Craig took Trinity Prep from a local gem to a school of statewide, and now national, prominence. Because of Craig, TPS is a Central Florida institution with tentacles in every aspect of Central Florida life.” As Paul says goodbye to one beloved headmaster, he offers welcoming arms to another. “I look forward to Byron M. Lawson Jr. using the platform that was built by the great leaders before him to take us to places we can’t even imagine. As sad as I am about Craig’s departure, I am equally enthusiastic about Byron’s arrival and the future in store for us.” 🌟

“I ALWAYS KNEW I WOULD SEND MY KIDS TO TRINITY PREP, EVEN WHEN I WAS STILL AT THE SCHOOL.”

The More You Learn, The More You Grow

BY SAMANTHA DIMAIO '18

Nick McKenzie '15, ended his time at Trinity Prep with a bang. The former student body president and varsity swim team captain received the Morehead-Cain Scholarship, a prestigious honor that covers all expenses for four years of undergraduate study at University of North Carolina (UNC)-Chapel Hill.

Last summer, Nick sailed off the coast of Maine for approximately 300 miles over the course of four weeks. Based in the Hurricane Island Outward Bound School, he was challenged to learn not only how to sail, but also how to be a better person and better leader. "Although the context of my growth was in sailing the coastal waters of Maine, surrounded by some of the most beautiful sunrises I have ever seen, Outward Bound pushed me to my limits." Although Nick says that it was one of the most challenging experiences he has ever had, he will forever be grateful for the impact it had on him.

Accustomed to cardio training after four years of swimming at Trinity Prep, Nick says that he still thought it best to try something incredibly out of his comfort zone. "I have come to realize that the more you challenge yourself in anything you do, the more you learn, and the more you grow. So given the opportunity to 'adventure' for a month with very minor stakes in the long-term, I decided to sail in Maine with the hopes that I would be thrust out of my comfort zone and return home as a more mature and aware version of myself."

This summer, Nick is headed to Lilongwe, Malawi, to work in an HIV research hospital through UNC-Project Malawi. There he will be working with several initiatives aimed at reducing the frequency of mother-to-child HIV transmission. With the intent of earning a master's in public health and a doctorate or medical doctorate after undergrad, UNC Project-Malawi seemed to be the best fit for his summer. Ultimately, as an intern with UNC Project-Malawi, Nick will experience exposure to research techniques, to various types of hospitals, and to UNC faculty conducting HIV research projects in Malawi, all of which are closely linked to epidemiological studies he would like to conduct in the future.

"Coupled with academic exposure, I can only imagine the personal growth I will gain from living on my own in Malawi."

The Morehead-Cain Foundation held sessions for all scholars to address the ethical implications of sending students to places like Malawi, and Nick also took an anthropology course that solely focused on humanitarian aid in foreign countries. Nick also took a night class called "Malawi 101" to learn about the culture and the fundamentals of Chichewa, the native language of Malawi.

Nick credits his inspiration to travel and serve abroad to Katie Seymour, Trinity Prep's former assistant director of admission, whom Nick describes as "so incredibly in tune with the needs of others and truly an example of genuine service."

"The Morehead-Cain Foundation has supplied me with the funding, freedom, and support network to explore the world around me. It has connected me with a cohort of creative and curious students and alumni who encourage me to question my surroundings and treat life as an adventure. This scholarship has done more than supply me with material needs; it has instilled a sense of gratitude and confidence in me that I think are necessary to my life-long journey." 🌟

HEADMASTER'S DAY

After the first victory of Trinity Prep's Saints football team in 1970, Canon Hay declared a school holiday. This day has since become a much-anticipated "surprise" day held in the spring. Classes compete in events like crab soccer, ultimate frisbee, balloon toss, and a pie-eating contest. The morning ends with the annual junior-senior rope pull over the canal between Lake Martha and Lake Burkett. School is then dismissed for the rest of the day to allow the students and faculty to relax at an otherwise busy and stressful time of the year. ✨

LEADERSHIP AND CAREER SPEAKER

Mr. Joie Chitwood

BY SAMANTHA DIMAIO '18

Trinity Prep's mission is reaffirmed with four core values, one of which is leadership and character development. Every year, we try to bring in members of the Trinity family who have exemplified leadership throughout their lives. This year, we had the honor of Mr. Joie Chitwood, the chief operating officer of International Speedway Corp, coming back to talk about leadership. He stressed the idea that students should never give up, but always find a way to "get the yes" in a world of "no"s. His energy, drive, and work ethic helped his message reach our students and really left a strong imprint on their minds. ✨

SCHOOL'S OUT FOR SENIORS

Prior to getting their diplomas, the graduates of the Class of 2016 received an early graduation gift—the prized Trinity Prep alumni t-shirt! The shirts were updated this year to reflect the school colors as well as the addition of the class year on the sleeve. The Alumni Advisory Board members handed out the t-shirts, served the seniors lunch, courtesy of 4Rivers, and cake, welcoming the latest graduates and newest alumni at the annual School's Out for Seniors cookout and pool party. ✨

CAREER LUNCH - BUSINESS

Trinity Prep's Alumni Office offers career lunches for 11th and 12th grade students. On Wednesday, January 27, over 20 students gathered for a panel discussion on careers in business. Panelists included Jonathan Detzel '04, Harry Falk '81, Jeff Hartman '81 and Trae Terry '98. We appreciate the alumni volunteering their time to come back to campus and speak to the students. ✨

On April 15, Brian Tolen '90 and David Barquist '75 were inducted into Trinity Prep's Arts Hall of Fame. Mr. Tolen spent the day at his alma mater and spoke to several of the art and film classes.

Brian Tolen '90

David Barquist '75

BRIAN TOLEN '90

Brian came to TPS during his sophomore year when Whitney Wolf was his art teacher. Having always shown an interest in art, Brian took casting classes at the Maitland Art Center under Mr. Wolf, casting bronze and aluminium. In 1989, Brian won Best in Show at the Winter Park Art Show, and the piece was later displayed at the Orlando Museum of Art. After graduating from Trinity Prep, he attended Maryland Institute College of Art. After he graduated, Brian went to an art research and technology center in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. There they cast other artists' works for them. "I turned green from the bronze powder and my sweat. Literally green. I quickly came to my senses and figured out that I really didn't want to be a bronze caster."

Currently, Brian is the art director and superintendent at The Nassal Company in Oviedo. The company works in specialty construction of themed environments, coordinating with all the companies involved to make the finished project. Brian entered Nassal as a shop artist. "I rose through the ranks quickly because I was enthusiastic. I came early, stayed late, and cleaned up after myself. I worked harder than anyone else and I produced better work." Now Brian oversees work at the job sites and is one of the highest ranking supervisors in the company.

Brian is known for his background art work on Journey to Atlantis at Seaworld. He also created artwork for Men in Black; Wanadu; Curse of Darkastle in Williamsburg, Virginia; Teibel's Circus Museum in Sarasota; and Candu in Columbia, South Carolina. Brian also worked on many projects for Universal Studios Theme Park, including King Kong (Orlando), the Adventures of Spiderman (Orlando and Japan), Harry Potter and the Forbidden Journey (Orlando), and Diagon Alley (Orlando). Brian sculpted the skull on the prow of the pirate ship that shoots t-shirts at the Tampa Bay Buccaneers stadium, and he is also responsible for the "sports sculptures" that adorn the ESPN building in Los Angeles. Brian's favorite projects so far are the Adventures of Spiderman and Harry Potter and the Forbidden Journey, both in Japan. "Those were my favorites because I got to live in Japan for eleven months during construction."

“EACH AND EVERY ONE OF YOU --ARMED WITH THE EDUCATION AND EXPERIENCES THAT YOU WILL ALL HAVE AT THIS GREAT SCHOOL --IS CAPABLE OF EXTRAORDINARY THINGS.”

The Honorable Christopher R. “Casey” Cooper ’84

ALLISON COOPER '12

In 1996, Trinity Prep established the Distinguished Alumni award to honor alumni who demonstrate the highest standards of excellence and achievement in service to either the school or the community. The school presents the award annually on the Friday of Celebration & Reunion Weekend.

The Honorable Christopher R. “Casey” Cooper ’84 received a bachelor’s degree in economics and political science summa cum laude from Yale University in 1988. He received a juris doctorate, cum laude, in 1993, and was president of the Stanford Law Review. He served as a law clerk for the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia from 1993 to 1994. From 1994 to 1996, he was a special assistant to the Deputy Attorney General in the Department of Justice. He served as an associate at Miller, Cassidy, Larroca & Lewin LLC from 1996 until its merger with Baker Botts LLP in 2001, serving as a partner at the latter firm. Since February 2012, he has been a partner at Covington & Burling LLP. On Aug. 1, 2013, President Obama nominated Cooper to serve on the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. On March 28, 2015, he received his commission as a United States District Judge.

In his acceptance speech, Casey discussed some of the duties of a Federal District Court Judge and how his position has changed the way people treat him. Casey said, “They call me ‘your honor,’ they stand up when I walk into the courtroom, and they laugh at my jokes.” It is easy to see how being in a position of such power and respect can go to someone’s head. However, Casey claims he is able to stay grounded for two reasons: the first is his two teenage sons, who “definitely don’t stand up when I walk in the room, and they definitely don’t laugh at my stupid jokes.” The second reason is that he believes “most adults, at their core, are basically the same people that they were in high school” because a person’s core values are developed then.

Casey then shared a message with the students in the audience. He stated, “Each and every one of you--armed with the education and experiences that you will all have at this great school--is capable of extraordinary things.” Many people may think success is attained through extraordinary talents, or unbridled ambition, or even just by having success handed to them. However, Casey believes that most success comes from doing a handful of things well: striving to be honest and trustworthy, balancing hard work and fun, figuring out what they like to do and where their talent lies, being intellectually curious and socially adept, and taking advantage of opportunities that come along. “And one of the most meaningful opportunities that all of us have been provided is to attend Trinity Prep.”

Trinity Prep provides teachers and coaches who care not only about giving students a great education, but about their development in an environment where learning and achievement are valued, recognized, and rewarded, and where being smart and doing well in school are assets, not liabilities. For Casey, those teachers were Jay St. John, Andy Denicole, and Bob McClure. At Trinity Prep, there is room to explore – intellectually, athletically, socially, emotionally – without having to deal with the obligations and responsibilities of adult life. Casey said that “being a Trinity Prep alumnus will be one of the most important memberships that you will have in your life. In addition to an outstanding academic reputation, you will have a wide network of lifelong professional and social connections.”

Many of Trinity Prep’s alumni have made a positive impact on the school or the community. If you would like to recognize someone who has achieved the highest standards for excellence and achievement, you can submit a nomination through the form provided on our website: <https://www.trinityprep.org/alumni>. ✨
