Headmaster's Report

Craig Maughan

One of the special recommendations offered by the Florida Council of Independent Schools Accreditation Team last year was "The Board of Trustees should move quickly to update the strategic plan and identify clear priorities for Trinity Prep's continued growth and development." To assist in the development of this plan, the school secured the services of educational consultant, Edward C. Becker. Mr. Becker had a four-decade career in independent schools serving as head of school at Episcopal High School in Jacksonville, Metairie Park Country Day in New Orleans, and Episcopal High School in Houston, Texas before joining Educators' Collaborative Consulting Group.

A strategic planning committee was assembled with representatives from the board, the administrative council, faculty, alumni, parents, and former parents. Results from surveys that were administered to all our constituencies in preparation for the accreditation process were distributed to members of the committee. In addition, the committee reviewed other materials that were useful in assessing our current programs and services and in establishing clear priorities for the future.

In February, members of the committee participated in a weekend retreat, engaging in productive sessions in which we discussed mission, core values, vision, and policy priorities for the next five years. After completing deliberations and final editing, the strategic planning committee will recommend to the full board of trustees the strategic plan for approval at the May board meeting.

As we approach our forty-fifth year providing a college preparatory education for Central Florida, it is an exciting time to reflect upon our foundational principles and core values, while at the same time, considering twenty-first century skills and methods that will be crucially important for the success of all of our students in college and beyond. After approval of this plan, we will share the details and implementation strategies, including ways that the entire Trinity Prep family can assist us in achieving these goals.

Jane Jones Retires After 22 Years

from The Trinity Voice, by Richelle Burke '14

When Jane Jones became a member of the Trinity family in 1989, she felt nervous about her first day teaching middle school students. She remembers her first year as being quite challenging. "Teachers have to make first year adjustments just as students do," she said.

Before coming to Trinity Prep, Jones had spent a year in Japan as an English professor for a university in the city of Fukuoka. While there, she also studied the Japanese arts of calligraphy, cooking, and Kyudo, a Japanese form of archery. "I truly believe that if everyone spent a year immersed in a different culture, the world would be a better place," Jones said. Now, after twenty-two years of teaching at Trinity Prep, Jones has decided to retire. She has loved every moment of her years at TPS and regards each day as a joy when the students walk into her classroom ready to learn. Jones emphasized that her favorite aspect of teaching is being able to enlighten so many children. She loves having the freedom to teach the class in her own creative style. "Having the flexibility to create my own curriculum within the scope and sequence of the school is very rewarding," Jones said with a smile. "I will definitely miss being stimulated by seventh and eighth graders because I love their energy!"

Not only has Jones enjoyed her students, but also her fellow teachers who have been caring and supportive throughout her years at Trinity Prep. Jones plans to keep in touch with her colleagues even after retirement.

Although Jones is leaving Trinity Prep, she has made many plans for the future. She intends to travel around the country and to Japan so she can reconnect with old friends, and to go to a cooking school in Tuscany, Italy. After she completes her list of places to visit, Jones plans to move back to Chapel Hill, North Carolina, her hometown, and work on her novel, a chilling horror/mystery set in an Everglades that has been contaminated by the sugar industry.

In her spare time, she plans to read and tend to her garden. Jones also plans to start a business with a couple of friends to offer healthy meal options for mail order. "I will not be bored," she said.

After teaching in the same classroom since she started at Trinity Prep and meeting so many wonderful students, Jones says she's going to miss her job as a teacher. "I can't imagine teaching anywhere else," she said. "I'm really going to miss the kids." Jones has given each and every one of her students a new appreciation for the English language. She will always be remembered as a loving and creative member of the Trinity family.

Last April Trinity Prep installed a portrait of Thomas Coston Dickinson, Jr. '74, for whom the Dickinson Activity Center is named, in the DAC. Several of Tom's family and friends were present for the installation. Headmaster Maughan followed the installation by sharing with the students the history of the DAC, as well as remembrances and pictures of Tom as a student. The event allowed both the current students and the Dickinson family to honor Tom and his contribution to the Trinity Prep family.

Commencement 2011

The first weekend in June 2011 brought the traditional ceremonies that make graduation special for Trinity Prep's seniors and their families. On Thursday evening, graduates, family and faculty gathered for Trinity Prep's Baccalaureate service at St. Luke's Lutheran Church. As always, the seniors themselves played important roles in the service. Lexi Langs and Whitner Chase both contributed with Old Testament readings. Chelsie Holler performed beautifully on the song "Legacy" by Nichole Nordeman, reminding the graduates of the meaningful things they are leaving behind at Trinity Prep. A number of talented seniors also joined the Vocal Society as it performed "Pie Jesu" from Andrew Lloyd Webber's Requiem.

In a fitting close to her time as chaplain at Trinity Prep, The Reverend Sonia Sullivan Clifton delivered the Baccalaureate homily urging the graduates to see the blessings of living a kind, just, and humble life. Reverend Sullivan Clifton left Trinity Prep at the end of the 2010-2011 school year to become rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church in Orlando.

Saturday morning brought graduates and their families together in Trinity Prep's Education Center Auditorium for the excitement of the Commencement ceremony. Headmaster Craig Maughan began the program by presenting the 2011 H. Benton Ellis Award for Excellence in Teaching to 8th grade science teacher, Sara Dowdy.

Salutatorian King van den Berg addressed his classmates about the importance of friendships, experiencing the moment, and making memories saying, "What I want to say to the Class of 2011 today is this: take time to appreciate everything, make memories, and don't rush through your life." Daniel Schwindt spoke of passion and how it drives, enriches, and colors each of our lives in his valedictory address. "To my fellow students: for four and sometimes more years we have worked together, a microcosm of the greater Trinity family. Remember to follow your passion and everything else will fall into place."

Quoting from poems, donning many different hats and even performing magic tricks, Thaddeus Seymour inspired graduates and delighted their families with the heartfelt wisdom and humor of his commencement address. Seymour urged the graduates to "keep learning" and "keep serving" after they leave Trinity Prep. Using words from Walt Whitman's Song of Myself he challenged each graduate to be a "bold swimmer" in the sea of life. As Seymour noted, his connection to the Trinity family goes beyond that of commencement speaker. He has been a trustee, a booster, and the grandparent of three grads: Thad Seymour '05, Nate Seymour '08, and 2011's Maddie Seymour.

In 1978, Seymour became the 12th president of Rollins College. During his 12-year tenure, he oversaw the construction of the Olin Library and the Cornell Social Sciences Building and his work enhanced the academic excellence of the college's liberal arts education. In 1997, Seymour and his wife Polly were named Winter Park's Citizens of the Year in recognition of their outstanding service to the community.

To conclude the Commencement ceremony, John Allen led the assembly in the singing of the Alma Mater. The graduates then moved quickly to Senior Rock for the traditional passing of the diplomas. Finally, with a toss of their caps into the air, the 2011 graduates left Trinity Prep as alumni to embark on the next exciting chapter of their lives.

School's Out for Seniors

Prior to getting their diplomas, the graduates of the Class of 2011 received an early graduation gift—the prized Trinity Prep Alumni t-shirt! The Alumni Advisory Board members handed out t-shirts while they flipped burgers, served cake, and welcomed the latest graduates at the annual School's Out for Seniors Cookout and Pool Party. The party concluded with the traditional countdown to the end of the last day of classes for the seniors!

Distinguished Alumni Award

Dr. Jeffrey Lebensburger
Class of 1993

Trinity Prep's Distinguished Alumni award is given annually to an alumnus/a who demonstrates the highest Trinity Prep standards for excellence and achievement in service to either the school or his/her community. The presentation of the award was moved to Celebration & Reunion 2011, a fitting start to the weekend! We were pleased and honored to offer the award to Dr. Jeffrey Lebensburger '93, an assistant professor in Pediatric Hematology and Oncology at the University of Alabama at Birmingham. His career is focused on treating children with cancer and blood diseases.

After graduating from Trinity Prep in 1993, Dr. Lebensburger attended the University of Pennsylvania. During his pre-medical studies, he reflected on the influence of his teachers at Trinity Prep and realized his desire to give back to the profession. He turned to his former headmaster, Jay St. John, who hired him to teach 8th grade science at Nova Southeastern University. After two years of teaching and coaching basketball, he continued his medical education at Nova Southeastern University. He returned to Orlando for Pediatric Residency at Arnold Palmer Hospital for Women and Children and completed his training in Pediatric Hematology Oncology at the renowned St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, TN.

Dr. Lebensburger currently is designing a study that will be conducted at hospitals throughout the US and England to determine the best way to treat a type of stroke in children with sickle cell anemia. He recently was selected as a scholar for the American Society of Hematology, an international award for young clinical investigators. He also cares for the more than 200 children diagnosed yearly with blood diseases and cancer in Alabama. He continues to be involved in education by lecturing medical students and residents.

Kerry and Judi Lebensburger, Mary Lynn Kranze, Heather, son, daughter, Jeffrey, daughter, and Craig Maughan

Trinity Prep and the TPS Alumni Advisory Board honored Dr. Jeffrey Lebensburger '93 with the presentation of Trinity Prep's Distinguished Alumni Award in April 2011. Headmaster Craig Maughan and Alumni Advisory Board president Frank Wright '89 introduced both Jeff and the award to the students in an all-school assembly. Below are excerpts from Jeff's speech to the students, faculty, and administration. To listen to Jeff's entire speech, we invite you to visit the media gallery at trinityprep.org/events

I would like to thank the Alumni Advisory Board for selecting me for this honor. I would like to tell you the two ways that Trinity Prep shaped my career path. I really enjoyed my time at Trinity Prep: I had great friends and amazing teachers. As I looked back and thought about all the experiences, I decided to delay admission to medical school so that I could become a teacher. I called my old headmaster, Jay St. John, who had a position as an 8th grade science teacher available at a prep school in Ft. Lauderdale. I spent the next two years teaching science, coaching basketball and sponsoring the Key Club. I ask you today to consider teaching both as a profession, and also as a way to honor those teachers that inspired you while at Trinity Prep. For the teachers, I challenge you to continue to strive to motivate your students to pursue excellence in their lives.

While I loved being a teacher, I knew that I wanted to pursue a career in pediatric cancer medicine. My decision to pursue this career was also a direct result of my experience at Trinity. When I was in 9th grade, some upperclassmen in the Key Club approached me to go to Give Kids the World. Give Kids the World is a resort exclusively for children with life threatening illnesses, providing these families with cottages, free Disney tickets, and plenty of activities at the resort. As members of the Key Club, we went there to plant flowers, wash cars, and clean dishes. What I realized as a 9th grader at Trinity Prep was that helping out these children, children my age but with life threatening diseases, provided me with a great feeling of personal worth. I knew I wanted to experience this kind of personal satisfaction on a daily basis. At that point, I decided that I want to be these children's doctor.

I would like everyone to think about any volunteer experience or other experiences that has made you feel great about yourself. And then think about how you could do this; feel this good about yourself every day of your life, whether it's enjoying cleaning up a dirty park and deciding to become an environmental lawyer or enjoying Habitat for Humanity and becoming an architect. I would like you all to think now about an activity that you have done here at Trinity Prep that may change your life.

I have told you my dream. For me, it is being there for families when you have to break the news that their child has cancer, but tell them that every day we are going to fight this disease together. Think about your life and what your cause will be. Think of it now and hold on to that dream. Choose a career that makes you feel accomplished, so that even on tough days, you are proud because of the profession you chose.

I would now like to address the upperclassman. I got involved in Give Kids the World as a 9th grader because Cathy Lo, an 11th grader I looked up to, asked me to go with her one weekend. I ask that all upperclassman, especially if you provide leadership in community service, to get the underclassmen involved. Not just for the future of your project or club, but to inspire the future leaders of Trinity Prep. Think of those people now in college that you looked up to and realize that you can have that same impact. Trinity Prep provides each one of you with a great education, but Trinity Prep is more than the classroom experience. Trinity Prep's excellence lies with you, the students. For each new graduating class, the students provide Trinity Prep with a stronger legacy. It is your responsibility to continue to be great. It is your responsibility to live a great life. I thank the alumni for this honor, as I know that Trinity shaped my life for the better.

HOMECOMING 2011

We love a family reunion—and Homecoming is the granddaddy of them all! Alumni and their families, faculty, students, and parents kicked off the evening with a carnival, complete with food booths, face painting, and a bounce house, and a concert—best of Alomapalooza in the baseball batting cages—while anticipating the real kick-off against Orangewood Christian. At the appointed time the Saints marched from the practice fields to Hubbard Field to watch the game begin. From fans in the stands to alumni in the end zone, everyone had a great view of the game, the parade, the presentation of the court, and the final score with the Saints on top, 29-7!

From Coach Finnucan: Thanks to Everyone who helped make Homecoming a great event. The afternoon Pep Rally was fantastic and the senior boys dance was the best ever. Our student bands showed us just how much talent we have on the campus, the Hall of Fame inductees reminded everyone that we truly are a family, the senior girls prevailed in powder puff, and the football team won the game. The Athletic Booster Club put on a great Carnival and Concert for the students, alumni, and faculty to enjoy and I cannot thank the faculty volunteers for the water tank enough.

Thanks again to everyone.

Kathy

Athletic Hall of Fame

TPS students, faculty, administration, and staff gathered mid-day on Homecoming to celebrate the induction of five former Trinity Prep athletes into the Athletic Hall of Fame. Kathy Finnucan and Craig Maughan paid tribute to their personal records and accomplishments as well as their contributions to the TPS athletic program as they introduced them to the assembled. The inductees shared reminiscences and lessons learned in their acceptance speeches, giving the students the benefit of their stories of dedication and commitment—and some humorous memories. After the ceremony, everyone moved onto the quad for the traditional Lunch on the Lawn. We welcome Brent Matthews '78, Mike Curran '84, Aimee Nocero Lewis '89, Jason Palma '96, and Andrea Georoff '01 into the Trinity Pre Athletic Hall of Fame! (For the complete speeches, please go to www.trinityprep.org/alumni.)

Michael Curran – Class of 1984 was a four year letterman in baseball and a 3- year starter. He was selected as co-captain his junior year, captain during his senior year and helped lead the team to District Championships in 1983 & 1984. Michael had a .352 career batting average and led the team in RBI's, homeruns and extra base hits in 1982, 1983, and 1984.

In his senior year, he was selected as the team's Most Valuable Player and was selected to play in the Central Florida All-Star game. Michael continued his athletic career at Framingham State College where he played baseball and was a member of the Ice Hockey Team in 1986.

Andrea Georoff – Class of 2001 was a member of the varsity swimming team for 3 years, leading the team to 3 District Championships and 3 State Runner-Up finishes. In 1998, she was the Individual State Champion in the 50 Freestyle and 100 Freestyle, and was a member of the State Champion 200 Freestyle Relay and 400 Freestyle Relay teams. In her junior year, she swam on the State Champion 200 Freestyle Relay Team and was 2nd in the state in the 50 Freestyle and 100 Freestyle.

Andrea was selected to the All-County and All-Central Florida teams in 1998, 1999, and 2000. She currently holds the school record in the 50 Freestyle with a time of 23.08 seconds and in the 100 Freestyle with a time of 50.76 seconds.

She continued her athletic career at the University of Virginia where, as a freshman, she was a 5-time ACC Champion and NCAA All-American. She transferred to the University of Georgia in 2003 where she was a 4-time NCAA Champion, SEC Champion, and 2-time NCAA All-American. In 2004 Andrea was a member of the World and American Record setting Short Course 200 Freestyle Relay Team.

Brent Matthews – Class of 1978 earned a total of 13 varsity letters as a member of the football, soccer and track teams.

He was a four-year starter on the football team as a running back/defensive back. Brent was one of the leading rushers during his career and led the team in interceptions in 1976 and 1977. He earned All-County honors in 1975 and All-State honors in 1977. He was the co-captain of the 1977 State Runner-Up team and named the Most Valuable Player his senior year.

A versatile athlete, Brent was a 3-year starter in soccer, playing a variety of positions and a member of the track team for six years. He was the 1974 District Champion in the 440 dash, setting a school record and was a member of the District Champion 4x440 Relay. Brent competed in the 1975, 1976, and 1977 State Meets, placing in the 110 dash, 440 dash, and long jump. Brent continued his athletic career at Wofford College and was a member of their soccer team in 1979 and 1980.

Jason Palma – Class of 1999 was a versatile athlete earning 3 varsity letters in track and 3 in basketball. He helped lead the track team to a State Runner-Up finish in 1998 and was the 110 High Hurdle State Champion in 1999. Jason currently holds 2 individual school records: 110 High Hurdles 14.7, 300 Hurdles 39.6 seconds, and was on the record setting 4X100 Relay team. He was the District and Region Champion in the 110 High Hurdles in 1997, 1998, and 1999. Jason was selected to the All-Conference and All-County teams in 1998 and 1999, was the team's Point Champion in 1998 and Most Valuable Player in 1999.

Jason was the point guard on the varsity basketball team from 1997-1999 and was named the Best Offensive Player in 1997 and Co-Most Valuable Player in 1998 and 1999. Jason continued his athletic achievements at Rhodes College and was named to the SCAC All-Conference track team in 2000.

Aimee Nocero Lewis – Class of 1989 a member of the Girls' Varsity Tennis Team from 1984-1989 winning the individual #3 singles District Championship in 1985 and team District Championships in 1986 and 1989. Aimee played in the # 1 position in both singles and doubles her junior and senior year and led the team to the Conference Championship in 1989.

Aimee was named the Most Valuable Player her sophomore, junior and senior year, selected to the All-Conference Team in 1988 and 1989, earned 1st team All-County honors in 1988, and 1989 and was captain of the team as a junior and senior.

In 1989, Aimee was Trinity Prep's Female Letterwoman of the Year and the recipient of the U.S. Army Reserve Scholar Athlete Award. Aimee remained active in tennis after high school, playing on the club team at the University of Notre Dame and in USTA women's leagues in Orlando.

Arts Hall of Fame

Two special alumni took center stage on opening night of Rodgers and Hart's The Boys from Syracuse—before the curtain rose! The Patrons of the Arts staged a short ceremony and presented Brian Covington '77 and James Kitchens '92, the inaugural inductees into the Trinity Prep Arts Hall of Fame, with awards for their careers in the arts. While nominees to the Arts Hall of Fame are considered for their achievements in the arts after high school, both of this year's inductees spoke of how their teachers and classes at Trinity Prep helped to cultivate their artistic expressions and to motivate them toward their careers.

Preceding the ceremony and the opening of the show, the inductees with their families, friends, and fellow alumni gathered with members of the Patrons of the Arts for a Spring Champagne Reception. The reception included a slide presentation of Brian and Jamie's work, student artwork, and music from a student jazz trio—a perfect way to celebrate our artists and the beautiful spring evening. Although there were plenty of incidences of mistaken identity in the show, there is no question that Brian Covington '77 and James Kitchens '92, this year's inductees, are true artists.

James Kitchens '92 is a Florida-based artist with two decades of experience in art and metal work. In addition to his extensive studies in art, Kitchens has a background in anthropology, quantum physics, Eastern religions, and holds a degree in philosophy with a minor in studio art. All of these play into the artist's visual vocabulary through his use of symbols, colors, and natural materials on the copper surface. Kitchens not only uses natural pigments in lieu of paint, but the artwork is sealed with a low VOC varnish, making the work Eco-friendly.

As a student at Trinity Prep, James completed Art I, Art II, Art III independent study, and A.P. Art. He also participated in a fellowship with art teacher Whitney Wolf in association with the Maitland Art Center, studying bronze casting and metal work. James' work was represented for three years in the student art section at the Winter Park Art Festival and won multiple awards. During his senior year, he was the youngest award winner ever at the Maitland Art Center's 3 X 3 show. James received the Art Award at Trinity Prep his senior year.

At age 26 James was a full-time artist, transitioning from outdoor festivals to high-end fine galleries. He developed a method of painting using natural pigments on sheets of copper. James' art has been in galleries and solo shows in cities including Boston, Dallas, Miami, Charlotte, Taos, Asheville, Chicago, and Palm Beach. His work is represented in private collections around the country and the world, including Scotland, London, and the south of Spain. The art also is featured in many of the Seasons 52 restaurants nationwide. More information about James' work can be found at his website www.JamesKitchens.com.

Brian Covington '77 is a principle with Ferguson & Shamamian Architects, LLP. Brian directs the firm's interior decoration department as well as integrates interior architecture and decoration on many of their projects. Ferguson & Shamamiam is widely recognized for residential design in traditional styles—from rural cottages to country estates—including interior design and gardens.

As a Trinity Prep student, Brian designed scenery for school productions including You Can't Take it With You, Diary of Anne Frank, Little Mary Sunshine, Ten Little Indians, Black Comedy, and The Boyfriend. He won the state Thespian competition for scenery design in both his junior and senior years for A Man for All Seasons and Androcles and the Lion, respectively.

During his freshman year at Rollins College, Brian constructed and painted scenery for the theater productions. After 10 weeks working summer stock at The Pocano Playhouse in PA, he returned to Orlando and designed scenery for three of the Civic Theater mainstage productions, as well as the summer season at the Annie Russell Theater at Rollins. He moved to NYC in 1979 and worked in various capacities at scenic studios including two Woody Allen films, Starlight Express and Purple Rose of Cairo, and the Circle in the Square production of Major Barbara. He entered SUNY-Purchase and majored in scenery and costume design with coursework in art history, modern art, and architecture. While at SUNY-Purchase, Brian designed a production of Romeo and Juliet under guest director, Gerald Freedman.

After several more design projects at the Fashion Institute of Technology and the Houston and Syracuse Opera Companies (joint productions), Brian worked on interior design and architectural projects for Jerome Sutter. He continued work as a consultant for other designers and began to build a clientele of his own. In 1998 Brian joined Ferguson & Shamamian. Widely published in books and magazines, in 2003 the firm was honored with the prestigious Arthur Ross Award for Architecture from the Institute of Classical Architecture & Classical America.

Brian remembers the welcoming environment and encouragement that was so abundant at Trinity Prep. He particularly credits his teachers Anne Juergens and Gloria Houghton who inspired him and his good friends to "go out and do things we never would have dreamed of doing on our own."

Great Golf—Golden T Style!

November's 31st Annual Golden T Classic was a tournament of firsts: the first Golden T Classic held at the Country Club of Orlando, the first tournament players to end the afternoon on the club's new patio overlooking its beautiful golf course, and the first faculty team to claim the trophy! Parents, alumni, faculty, and friends participated in this favorite event, raising funds for the Dickinson Activity Center (DAC). Named for beloved alumnus Thomas C. Dickinson, Jr. '74, both the tournament and the much-used athletic facility carry on an important tradition.

We wish to thank our Tournament Sponsor, Wells Fargo, for its continued and loyal support. We also thank Blue and Gold Sponsor, Sodexo, and Hole-in-One Sponsors, Holler Hyundai and Massey Cadillac. We thank, too, Wayne Densch, Inc., Darden Restaurants, ESPN Wide World of Sports, DiPasqua Enterprises, Rio Pinar Country Club, the Dickinson family, and Trinity Prep Boosters as well as all of the tee sponsors and golfers for their contributions to the success of the day. There is no question that TPS celebrated the 31st anniversary of the Golden T Classic in style!

Bash!

Arguably the favorite alumni event of the year, the Bear Gully Bash didn't disappoint! Looking for a way to further "spice up" our nite golf and chili cook-off event, we fiddled with the schedule a bit. The golfers headed out just as it got dark, and the rest of the revelers didn't arrive until later for the "10th Hole Party."

The guests arrived with pots of chili and hearty appetites to greet friends, listen to the acoustic guitar music of Jon Messeroff '04, and enjoy a surprise treat from the Winter Park Distilling Company, the first artisan micro-distiller in the area. Owner Andrew Asher '91 and his wife, Francesca, greeted guests with samples of their spirits. When the golfers returned, the party was in full swing!

The prize for the best chili went to Ben Newman '85. The foursome of Chuck Kovaleski, Mike Kovaleski '99, Jon Arost '01, and Frank Walden '00 arrived back at the clubhouse with winning scores. But the biggest winners of all were the attendees of this terrific evening!

Celebration and Reunion

Weekend

Celebration & Reunion—we couldn't have come up with a better name or description of this annual event! While dedicated primarily to those alumni celebrating milestone reunions—the 10th to the 40th—alumni and faculty of all years come out to celebrate the Trinity family in April. Celebration & Reunion 2011 honored those alumni graduating in 1971, 1976, 1981, 1986, 1991, 1996, and 2001. We also celebrated our 2011 Distinguished Alumnus, Dr. Jeffrey Lebensburger '93, who was introduced to the students earlier that day.

Alumni, faculty, and trustees gathered Friday night for the All Alumni Reception on the Grille patio. We invited the families of alumni to campus on Saturday for fun, food, and games, complete with a Coach Finnucan softball game and a Coach Denicole baseball game, as well as a bounce house and pool time for our younger guests. The reunion classes held off-campus parties to celebrate their individual reunions Saturday night.

Save the date for Celebration & Reunion 2012—April 27-28—our next chance for celebration and reunion with our Trinity family!

Alumni Holiday Party

TPS alumni love a reason to gather, and the holidays offered plenty of chances! As TPS students studied for finals, alumni stepped in with hammers and paintbrushes on Alumni Habitat Day to work on the thirteenth TPS Habitat House. Our youngest alumni family members—those in the classes of '07-'11—came home after their own finals to TPS see each other and faculty members for the Young Alumni Holiday Party. All alumni were invited to ring in the New Year early at our now traditional All Alumni Holiday Happy Hour at Jack's Steakhouse (chef/owner Chris Lacey '01) late in December. And our singing and dancing alumni celebrated the New Year with the 4th Annual Alumni Cabaret! We love family at the holidays!

Peace Jam and Seminoles

Road Trip Reunions

We found alumni in three cities in the fall and spring! In November Katie Seymour took the TPS Peace Jam Travel Team to Tallahassee for a seminar. Current 9th, 10th, 11th, and 12th grade participants met Trinity Prep alumni at Chili's in the FSU Union to hear about life after Trinity Prep!

Our road trip reunion in Washington, DC, in January had all of the ingredients of a perfect alumni gathering: a good base, Dan Singhofen's '97 Eola Restaurant; plenty of alumni; and the great finish of our special faculty guest, Deb Costello! Students, young professionals, and more (ahem!) seasoned alumni provided the perfect mix for a great evening. Yes, we have to say it, we had a capital time!

When the calendar says it's time for back to school, we know it's time for alumni to get together! Local alumni found two chances to celebrate the beginning of the school year, first with a meeting in August of the Alumni Advisory Board at Jack's Steakhouse in Baldwin Park (chef/owner Chris Lacey '01) to plan events for the year. We then took advantage of the September alumni calendar and gathered at the Alumni Networking Social Wine Tasting at Tim's Wine Market. Alumni agree—the school year is off to a good start!

Alia Poonawala '07

Alia Poonawala '07 graduated from Carnegie Mellon University on May 15, 2011. Alia was chosen to give the Student Commencement Address at the graduation ceremony. Following is the text of her speech. Alia graduated from CMU with a BSA in Biological Sciences and Drama. She is in New York City pursuing a career in the culinary, theatre, and travel world.

Close your eyes. No really, go ahead. Close your eyes. I want you to think of your heart. And while your attention is on that beautiful, 4-chambered muscle, I want you to think of one thing that makes it beat wildly, without reason.

One thing that makes you deliriously happy. Whatever it is, I want you to hold on to it right now. Keep it close.

Now look around. Your families are supporting you from behind, you are sitting amongst some of the truest friends you'll ever have, and your advisors and faculty lead you from up here. What has brought you to this point?

Our graduation day from a wonderfully curious place. CMU. Home of witty t-shirts, LAN parties, & steam tunnels. To my Portal fans out there, where the cake is a lie... We have Wean Hall, whose transformation to Optimus Prime is nearly complete. You can find our students cluster-hopping on the weekends.

Performing on Broadway or building robots who go where no human has ventured before. We are surrounded by people who care. Our staff, our administration, and our professors, some so passionate about teaching, that in moments of academic reverie, they smear chalk all over their clothes because they could care less about the eraser. What a home we've had these past few years.

And now... it's time to go. You may not find such whimsicality or passion in the real world. In fact you'll find a lot of bores and boxed thinkers. But that's not our thing. My dear nerds, it's our turn to take CMU to the rest of the world.

"My heart is in the work." How many times have you heard it, for goodness sake? "My heart is in the work." Good. Keep it there. And take it everywhere you go. The world needs you and your heart. Fundamentally, it is the center of love. And if you think of some of the happiest moments in your life. Or at CMU. Who were they with?

So albeit over-said, it's over-said for a reason. Stay in touch. Today, make a promise to yourself and your friends. And say, "Bob! If we lose contact 10 years from now, 50 years from now, try and find me!" After all, we've got Facebook. So call each other up one evening and remember the halcyon (and hellish) days that you spent together.

Fundamentally, your heart carries truth. French Philosopher Pascal once said: "The heart has its reasons, which reasons knows nothing of!" So maybe you yearn to do something remarkable, to be someone special. Why not? What's holding you back? Doubt? Fear? Failure? It happens. Get over it.

Think of the things you want to accomplish in your lifetime. Small, big. Don't be afraid of getting it wrong. That's silly. You will. And then you try again and you get it right. Take chances, my friends. 'Cause nothing big or wonderful or beautiful or epic ever came out of playing it safe and following the rules. Be like Edison, who got it wrong 700 times before he made it work. Remember that every time you switch on a light.

My dear friends, trust that your heart possesses brilliant instinct. Ever heard of the paralysis of analysis? Just do it. Do you want something? ASK FOR IT. You'll be amazed at how people respond. "Leap and the net will appear." Ever heard of the all or nothing Law? A little fact about the heart, unlike skeletal muscle, the heart functions on a physiological principle called

"The All or Nothing Law," and that is, each time it contracts, it does so with ALL of its force. Once it is set in motion, it cannot stop. All or nothing. Let that propel you in all that you do.

Where will I end up? you may ask. That, I cannot say. But I can tell you where it begins. Right here (gesture), Right here.

In memoriam

Gloria Rockwood Houghton, beloved TPS teacher from 1971 through 1979, died September 16, 2011.

Gloria taught British literature and humanities classes at Trinity Prep, but her teaching and influence extended far beyond the classroom. She escorted groups of students (even the soccer team!) on trips from New York City to England to the Soviet Union, and she sponsored Trinity Prep's Literary Society and its literary magazine, Jabberwocky.

Her students loved her and shared some of their thoughts and memories of her upon her death. Terri Noyes Dombroski '81 wrote, "I adored her, and I relate stories about her class to my kids often!" Tom Croft '80 shared, "She made an impact on many lives and was such a special teacher." Leigh Pirino Rye '80 offered, "She was so awesome!" Paul Swett '78 contributed, "What a blessing she was to so many of us over the years at Trinity and in the community!" "She will be greatly missed. I have many fond memories!" said former student and colleague Bill Stewart '79. Cherie Rosemond '73 wrote, "I remember Ms. Houghton well...with a gleam in her eye and lots of ideas for fun!"

Of Gloria, Canon Hay wrote these words in his book, A Dream Realized:

A Very Special Lady

She made Trinity a fun place to be. She was able to inspire her students with love of great literature of the ages. Characters came alive, literally. Each year, under her direction, Trinity held a Shakespeare Festival, complete even to mead and characters in full costume. It can be safely said that there was never a dull moment in her classes. Her love for her students extended to every aspect of their lives. Most particularly she is remembered for her boundless energy which took her to the ends of the Earth, by dogsled, if necessary. In so many ways, Gloria Houghton made Trinity what it is today.

Chris Catron and his family moved back to the United States from Germany after three years. Chris and his family travelled extensively throughout Europe and central Eurasia covering more than 22 countries including such tourist destinations as Dushanbe, Astana and Tashkent. Chris reports, "I am enjoying spending time with my family back in Bristow, Virginia, and now only travel for pleasure. Most recently we took a quick 'vacation' to Disney World so we could run at Disney's marathon weekend. I completed the Goofy Challenge (running the half marathon on Saturday and the full marathon on Sunday) along with my oldest son Mitchell, while my youngest son, Zachary, completed his first half marathon. None of this could have been possible with the support from my wife of 25 years, Debbie."

Lisa Ceely Derathe teaches ESL at Robinson High School in Tampa and is the girls and boys golf coach. Husband Philippe retired from the French Army and will be looking for a job in Tampa. Daughter Charlotte graduated from Salem College with a degree in International Business and is working in Boston. Son Ben is in his second year at the Naval Academy and majoring in Political Science. Son Thomas graduated from Plant High School and is a freshman at FSU. Lisa reports, "We are enjoying being empty nesters!"

Joel Jutagir, owner of Metro Skateshop in Pleasant Hill, CA, has a YouTube channel where roughly 15,000 subscribers tune in to see him and his friends demonstrate skateboarding tricks. Users of the popular channel selected Joel to be a part of the YouTube NextUp program, which was featured on the front page of USA Today in June. As a winner Joel, received $35,000 as well as training on everything from lighting a scene to marketing a brand. "YouTube isn't just a video platform; it's really a social networking site, a place to show like-minded people what you're up to," said Joel in the interview with USA Today. YouTube "has become so convinced that grassroots content creators such as Jutagir are the key to this metamorphosis" that it sent Joel and 24 others to its first-ever Creator Camp in New York. Joel said of the camp, "Getting together like this made me see that if I want it badly enough, making videos can be a way of life."

Keli Mazza was a production assistant for The Voice auditions while they were in Orlando last summer. Chosen as one of nine from a group of fifty possible assistants, Keli delivered contestants to their auditions and was production assistant to the vocal coach. Keli reports that it was great fun!

Stephen Casscells-Hamby, a junior at the University of North Carolina, was an intern for Senator Marco Rubio in Washington, D.C. last summer. Stephen also interned for Voloridge Investment Management, LLC, working on marketing campaigns and IB transaction data analysis. Stephen is majoring in business and is a Senior Resident Advisor.

Jordan Davis received a summer internship from the psychology department at Stanford. A very competitive internship, it was awarded to only 15 students. Jordan has been "running" research for the psychology department since the second quarter her sophomore year and was asked by her mentor to prepare the questions for her research and to administer the research on her own. Jordan also received a Dean's Award for Academic Excellence at the Black Community Services Center Annual Academic and Community Awards Ceremony at Stanford University in May.

Austin Burket '10 at the Orfeo International Music Festival in Italy

James Everett was cast as Sweeney Todd in Stanford University's Ram's Head Theatrical Society's production of the same name last spring. Eliana Cormona wrote in The Stanford Daily, "Everett's Sweeney was a wholly imposing one, and his voice carried a deep, ringing timbre that forced the audience to provide their full attention. High points to look out for: Lovett and Sweeney's playful duet, "A Little Priest" was Sondheim at his best; the joyful mood that Everett and Haas create is wholly infectious, and Everett's all-consuming rage in "Epiphany" is genuinely believable."

Andrew Michael Matthews, a junior and finance major at Texas Christian University, interned with Morningstar Financial in Madrid, Spain this past summer.

Jonathan Yergler, a junior at Princeton, was an intern with the marketing department of a law firm during the summer. He also was a counselor at several fencing camps on the Princeton campus. Jonathan traveled to Korea with his fencing team in August to participate in an invitational tournament. While abroad, Jonathan visited friends in several countries including China, France, and the Czech Republic. Jonathan is a psychology major.

Austin Burket attended the Orfeo International Music Festival in Vipiteno, Italy, performing on violin and tympani. He won the Strings Division of the Orfeo International Music Competition for his performance on violin. Austin also attended the Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Leadership Institute 2011 held at the University of Southern Indiana in Evansville, as the Secretary of Stetson University's chapter. He performed on drums in Trinity Prep's summer production, Hairspray. Austin ended his summer as the concertmaster of the Wayne Densch Performing Arts Center production of Ragtime, a fundraising effort for the Seminole County Repertory Company, combining a large orchestra, soloists and the Central Florida Community Choir. All performers donated their time and talents.

Brett Durda, (below) a sophomore at Jacksonville University, was awarded 2010-2011 Academic All Conference Honors and was on the 2010 Pioneer Football League Honor Roll. Brett plays on the defensive line.

Kyra Hartog is a sophomore at the University of Miami with a double major in marine science and biology. On the pre-veterinary track, Kyra has been interning in the RJ Dunlap Marine Conservation Program for two years. "The goal of the program is to educate the public about the importance of sharks in ocean ecosystems and introduce them to the way in which we do shark research. We take students (anywhere from high school to graduate school) out on the boat with us and they are able to assist us in our research as well as learn more about the importance of sharks."

Chelsi Woodruff and her team

Christine Pappas, a sophomore at Brown University, assists the Theater Department at The Wheeler School by helping 90 fourth and fifth graders learn vocals and choreography for a musical each semester. Additionally, she is teaching an elementary school chorus class. She also is the Business Manager for the Higher Key, Brown's only coed a cappella group. They will be giving a master class at Trinity Prep as well as performing at an assembly in March. Christine still is playing her viola as a member of one of Brown's string quartets.

Chelsi Woodruff, a sophomore at FSU, placed 13th in the mile at the Auburn Indoor Invitational in January and 39th in the 6000m at the ACC Championships in October. Also in October, Chelsi placed 86th in the NCAA Pre-Nationals in the 6000m and placed 6th in the 5000m at the FSU Seminole Invitational in September.

Alums on Campus

Alumni Bring Something Special Back to Campus

Alumni play a unique role with Trinity Prep's current students. With their relationships to the faculty and the school, and their experience in education and careers, alumni share their life adventures with the students as they share common ground. And students are eager to share what life is like on today's Trinity Prep campus!

Visitors last spring and fall included Sam Saunders '06, who offered Ralph Mazza's sports media class a unique opportunity to hear how he moved from college to professional golf. The students had the chance to question Sam in an interview format. They wanted to know everything from, "Other than golf, what was your favorite sport at Trinity?" (basketball) to "What part of your golf game are you working on?" (putting). Sam described in detail his love of golf and his desire to succeed in the game, as he communicated his work ethic and his drive to improve. He told the students, "As demanding as playing in the [PGA] tour is, it's what I've always dreamed of doing."

Charles Fiodor Nadd '07 visited both the Middle School and Upper School last spring. As a fourth year student at the USMA, he discussed what that path involves and requires. To Mr. Ballard's civics class, Charles Fiodor talked about life at the academy—his training, his studies, and his travels. He energized the students with his enthusiasm and passion for his own path as he related it to what the students were learning. He ended his presentation with several bits of encouragement including, "Don't let anyone tell you you can't do something—especially if it's the right thing to do." "Manners matter—know where you are and who you are dealing with." "Nothing is ever as bad as it seems; nothing is ever as good as it seems." And, "Stop making excuses: you're never too young to live your dreams—you always can do one more thing!"

Mike Toth '75, a frequent visitor to campus, spoke to Deb Costello's leadership class about his career in the CIA. A history major at Wake Forest University with an interest in international affairs, Mike applied to the agency upon his graduation. Working for the federal government afforded Mike a life of world travel and unique perspectives, making his classroom presentations on his visits to campus interesting and informative. He joked about his 6'8" frame making it difficult to work undercover, but stories of his adventures were compelling all the same. Today Mike uses his digital imaging skills to aid the Library of Congress with special projects.

Ally Halperin '04, formerly a senior admissions counselor for the College of Music and Fine Arts at Loyola University New Orleans and now an admissions counselor at Tulane University, lent her expertise to a group of sophomores just beginning their college searches last January. Ally offered solid counsel about what colleges are looking for in students—in their resumes, applications, and recommendations—and what students should be looking for in colleges. Both the students and the college counselors benefitted greatly from her viewpoint. “As a sophomore, you should keep your mind open as you experience different activities and areas of study. Don’t feel like you have to lock your choice down right at this moment, but rather start exploring and finding what general needs you have. Ideally, the answers to these broader questions will help you as you narrow your college search down later on.”

Paul Perkins '84 came to campus twice last spring, an expert in two areas. Paul first addressed the students at a Career Day assembly, sharing stories as an attorney, specializing in personal injury cases, many involving young people. Paul’s presentation was thought-provoking and enlightening. He returned to campus for commencement rehearsal for a second year, giving the soon-to-be graduates his humorous, thoughtful perspective on what it means to be a member of the Trinity family for life. It was a wonderful send-off for the seniors.

Brian Covington '77 was a guest in Janine Papin’s theater tech class last spring. Currently a principle in an architectural design firm in NYC, Brian told the students how the skills he developed in set design and building at Trinity Prep gave him the experience to pursue theater projects in college and beyond. Those experiences shaped his career. He told the students, too, that meeting schedules and deadlines working in the theater were good skills to bring to all career areas.

Courtney Walmer Vande Streek '07 addressed the Middle School in a special assembly last fall. She shared with the students her story that as a member of the 8th grade Builders Club, she started Hoppy Easter, a student-led project to fill Easter baskets for patients at Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children. She told the students that she remained active in community service through her high school years, including Peace Jam, culminating in starting a non-profit, Kingdom’s Noise, an organization which helps those in need.

Emily Harrell, 6th grade chemistry and math teacher in the 70's, and her husband are retired and continue to live in Ft. Worth, TX, which they love! She retired from 20 years at an HCA hospital in Ft. Worth last February. She volunteers at her church and at a community center for children (tutoring), enjoys being in two book clubs, traveling, and being with family and friends. She thinks frequently of her 6th graders at Trinity and would love to hear from them at garem36@sbcglobal.net.

Jay St. John will retire from Episcopal Day School in Southern Pines, NC, at the end of this school year after seven years at EDS as headmaster. Jay spent 40 years in independent education, 24 of them as head of school. Jay is exploring several opportunities. Daughter Kate is a junior at UNC-Chapel Hill, and Beth and Jay would like to stay east of the Mississippi for Kate's senior year. "Give my best to everyone at Trinity. Two weeks ago I was at a North Carolina conference of heads and trustees. I serve as one of eight directors of NCAIS, our state organization. So who stands up as a trustee of Carolina Friends Academy, a great school in Durham, but Natasha Nazareth Phelps, class of 1988. We had a great chat. Trinity is everywhere!"

Kathryn and Matt Ramsby have moved to Columbia, SC. They are teaching at the Hammond School, a private preK-12 school with a global and experiential emphasis as well as strong support for the arts. You can find Kathryn's artwork at www.kathrynrmsby.com.

David Waud, wife Pam, and daughter Haley visited TPS in February. On hand to give David and his family a tour were his former students Troy Deal '75 and Dan McIntosh, and fellow faculty member Dennis Bluge.
